10 Questions You Must Answer to Achieve Your Goals

What is your specific goal? Be clear! Use EXACT numbers, figures, dates, job titles, etc... This is critical, the more precise you are, the more specific details, the better!	Why does this goal matter to you? Does it match your passions, values, or future dreams?
What skills or knowledge do you need to achieve this goal? Will you need to develop leadership, technical skills, or hands-on experience?	Where will you learn these skills? Will you go to college, take online courses, find a mentor, or get hands-on experience?
How much time and money will it take? Will it take months, years, or a decade? Do you need scholarships, a job, or financial aid?	What daily or weekly habits will help you stay on track? Will you need to study, practice, network, or improve your time management?
What obstacles might get in your way? Will distractions, finances, or self-doubt slow you down? How will you overcome them?	Who can support and guide you? A teacher, mentor, coach, or friend who will encourage and push you to stay on track.
What are your first three action steps? Write them down and set deadlines to start moving forward.	How will achieving this goal impact your future? Will it create new opportunities, lead to financial stability, or allow you to make a difference?
